

REDUCE LIBRARY SERVICES OVERHEAD WITH RESOURCE SHARING

Libraries who use Innovative Resource Sharing realize the value of sharing the cost as well as the resources within a consortium. Leading research firm Hobson & Company (H&C) conducted independent research with 18 Innovative clients and here's how libraries reported Innovative Resource Sharing keeps overhead expenses in check:

REDUCE YOUR SHARED RESOURCE EXPENSES CONSIDERABLY

Providing and supporting interlibrary loan (ILL) is expensive –particularly when you consider the annual fees and per-transaction fees you likely incur. Add to that, the postage and courier costs, and the expense continues to climb. Innovative Resource Sharing provides an important element of cost reduction. It facilitates resource sharing within a consortium of libraries, allowing each member to significantly cut the bill for ILL and digital loan transactions.

This has improved the quality of life for those customers; our libraries are turning data into real stories that are used to communicate with city council and help show what they're doing for the community.
